Location:

Centrally located at I-95 Exit 150, 40 miles north of Augusta and 33 miles south of Bangor, the Town of Pittsfield has long been a commercial and industrial center in Central Maine. From the early woolen mills to the electronic and shoe industries, our industries promoted a strong economy and jobs for the entire Mid-Maine region.

Municipal Commitment:

The Town of Pittsfield has aggressively pursued economic development opportunities. In 2003, a new Economic Development approach was created to assist businesses in expanding and locating in Town. This pro-development policy has provided opportunities for the Town to grow its tax base, maintain a stable tax rate and offer its residents and those of the region extensive opportunities to work within the community. In addition to substantial contributions to the Town's infrastructure, Tax Increment Financing opportunities are available for larger development. The region has several economic development loan programs available for small to medium sized businesses which are promoted by the Town. By working with the private sector, regional groups and the State, many other financing options are available. Industrially zoned property located in close proximity to I-95 as well as a number of commercial properties in the downtown area offer significant development opportunities. Working in conjunction with local real estate companies, the Town of Pittsfield maintains a list of available properties.

A Quality of Life – Simply Outstanding!

The Town of Pittsfield has not experienced rapid residential growth. This has certainly been an advantage as it has allowed Pittsfield to remain one of the most community and family-oriented Towns in Central Maine while providing extensive economic development opportunities. Our current population is approximately 4,230. Owner-occupied homes comprise 76% of the housing stock. Housing is very affordable in the community.

The pride of Pittsfield residents and businesses for their community is well known. The Town is an outstanding place to grow a business and raise a family.
